SUPERVISOR MARK RIDLEY-THOMAS ENCOURAGES L.A. COUNTY RESIDENTS TO UTILIZE LOCAL 'COOLING CENTERS' DURING HOT WEATHER ADVISORIES

LOS ANGELES - With temperatures rising, the Los Angeles County Department of Community and Senior Services has dedicated "Community Cooling Centers" throughout the county.

When temperatures exceeding 100 degrees are forecast, the Department of Public Health issues Heat Alerts activating the centers to allow residents to cool down, rehydrate and relax.

These facilities are primarily in community centers, senior centers and public libraries that are open to the public year round.

By dialing 2-1-1, the County's Info Line, the complete listing of cooling centers can be found.
